At Convention Center - June 3, 4, 5
STUDENTS JOIN "A WORLD A'FAIR"

The UD International Club will participate in the fourth annual "A World A'Fair" to be held at the Dayton Convention Center June 3, 4, and 5.

Students in their native dress will march in the parade on Saturday morning at 10 a.m. closing with a flag presentation in the Stouffer Plaza Park. They, along with members of many Dayton community ethnic groups, will be honor guards at a naturalization ceremony during which 130 immigrants will become American citizens, taking their oath before Senior Judge Carl A. Weinman. For these few proud moments the Convention Center Theatre officially will become a U.S. District Court.

The International Center will sponsor two of the 190 booths featuring ethnic culture and food. The theme of the UD booths will be "It's a Small, Small World" and 39 flags representing the home countries of the 253 UD international students will flank the top of the booth. Replicas of children from around the world in their colorful holiday dress will be mounted along the booth background.

Cultural exhibits in the booths will consist of artifacts donated to the Center by friends from around the world. In keeping with the theme, the sale items will be children's dolls and toys. In addition "worry beads" symbolic of mid-east culture will be sold. These beads were made by the students. Attached to each string of beads will be a message explaining the origin and meaning behind this unique curio.

Students from Latin America will play "Brumas de elmar" on a Venezuelan instrument called a cuatro. The song expresses the feeling of a person who believes that life is like the Sea's Mist.

Several young male Lebanese students will perform a lively Lebanese folk dance. These activities will go on during the continuous entertainment portion of the fair which is included in the price of the ticket.

Tickets for the fair can be purchased at many area stores and schools including the International Center, O'Reilly Hall. You can obtain the tickets at presale price of $1.50 for adults and $.50 for children (3 through 18).

Regarding ABA accreditation, Father Roesch also reported to the Board on a recent meeting of the ABA committee considering final accreditation for the Law School. Though no decision has yet been received from the ABA, it was generally felt that final accreditation would be forthcoming as soon as significant progress has been made toward facility renovation. All other standards of the Law School appear to be in order.

The trend of enrollment growth will continue this fall, Fr. Roesch reported. The current number of accepted freshmen who have paid deposits is well ahead of last year. Full time undergraduate students are expected to number 5470 next fall, approximately 200 more than the present year, with a total overall enrollment of 8,000 students.
